STONE HILL, Baltimore, MD

Nestled in the heart of the Stone Hill Historic District - one of Baltimore's most picturesque and beloved enclaves -- this beautifully restored granite home blends 19th-century charm with thoughtful modern updates. Built in the late 1840s for Hampden's mill workers, Stone Hill remains a rare pocket of history, with its tree-lined, insular streets, granite exteriors, and an atmosphere that feels like stepping back to a simpler time. Perched on a gentle hill above the city bustle, this neighborhood exudes warmth, community, and a deep sense of place while still being a stone's throw from all the amenities offered by Hampden.

A white picket fence and arbor welcome you into a spacious yard - an uncommon find in the city - leading to the inviting front porch and bright sunporch with paned-glass windows. Inside, you'll find pine floors, a fireplace, and generous living and dining rooms that retain their historic character while offering modern livability. The kitchen has been tastefully updated with soapstone countertops, an induction stove, and has a charming breakfast nook perfect for morning coffee.

Upstairs, this home features two bedrooms on the second floor, plus a generous-sized bedroom on the third floor. Both full bathrooms have been completely renovated, the entire home has been freshly painted, and new carpet installed. Major updates include a fully repointed exterior and a new main roof. There is a garage out back for storage and a full-height basement provides excellent potential for finishing or use as a workshop or studio space.

This is a rare opportunity to own a piece of Baltimore’s history in a neighborhood that has retained its integrity and charm for nearly two centuries - a true village within the city.

Built in 1846
